"Young Frankenstein"

"An American Werewolf in London"

"Young Frankenstein" (1974) Blucher! Director Mel Brooks took on every "Frankenstein" movie convention – including filming it in black and white – in this classic satire that stars Gene Wilder as the eccentric Dr. Frankenstein (pronounced "Fronkensteen"), who created the oversized beast of the title (Peter Boyle) from spare parts in his lab. Cloris Leachman, Madeline Kahn, Marty Feldman and Teri Garr round out an impressive comedic cast.

"An American Werewolf in London" (1981) With an assist from makeup master Rick Baker (who won an Oscar for his efforts), director John Landis combined good scares with biting humor in this tale of two young Americans (David Naughton, Griffin Dunne) who are attacked by a monster while hitchhiking across the English moors. And the scene of Naughton waking up naked in the London Zoo's wolf cage after a night of – er, howling at the moon – is hilarious. Still the genre's state of the art.

"Ghostbusters" (1984) Bill Murray and Dan Aykroyd were at the height of their comedic powers when they combined with Harold Ramis and Ernie Hudson to play a team of exterminators charged with ridding Manhattan of its burgeoning apparition problem in director Ivan Reitman's box office smash. And Ray Parker Jr.'s hit theme song was as infectious as it got.

"Gremlins" (1984) "Yum, yum!" Mogwai were cute, furry little creatures that anyone would want as a pet, but feed them after midnight or get them wet and what a mess you will have on your hands, in this entertaining early effort from director Joe Dante that stars Phoebe Cates and Zach Galligan. Look closely and you'll see Tom Bergeron ("Dancing With the Stars") as a TV news reporter and Steven Spielberg as a wheelchair-bound man.

"Tremors" (1990) Giant subterranean worms make easy meals of the good folk of the small desert town of Perfection, Nev., in Ron Underwood's amusing yarn that offers up clever nods to "Jaws" and "Moby Dick." Kevin Bacon and Fred Ward star as the film's heroes, odd-job workers thrust into the role of town saviors, and Michael Gross did a 180-degree turn from his then-recently concluded "Family Ties" persona as a profane, hardened survivalist.

"Scream" (1996): Courteney Cox took a break from her "Friends" duties to star as a tabloid news reporter seeking a connection between a woman's murder and the stalking of her daughter (Neve Campbell) a year later in this well-regarded satire from scaremaster Wes Craven.

"Fido" (2006): A domestication collar turns zombies into housekeepers, butlers and other domestic help in Andrew Currie's underrated horror/comedy. Billy Connolly, Carrie-Anne Moss and Henry Czerny star.

In the closing moments of Season 2 of AMC's "Preacher," viewers were left with the vision of Tulip, eyes open, motionless and in the prone position in the back of Jesse's car after apparently being shot to death by Lara Featherstone (Julie Ann Emery).

So as Season 3 of the graphic supernatural drama opens on Sunday, June 24, we learn of Tulip's fate. And frankly, she's been better.

"Dead," says Ruth Negga, the actress who plays Tulip. "Well, she's basically dead and she stays dead for quite a while. And then she gets alive again. ... Basically, Jesse has to do a deal with the devil — well, a devil. Not the devil but a devil. And he sort of forfeits something in order for her to come back to life. ... And that sets the premise for the show."

Jesse's (Dominic Cooper) desperation to get his ex-squeeze back among the living prompts him and Cassidy (Joseph Gilgun) to bring her lifeless body back to his hometown of Angelville, La., and the home of Jesse's "Gran'ma," Madame Marie L'Angell (Tony winner and Daytime Emmy nominee Betty Buckley, "Eight Is Enough"), an accomplished sorceress who can help — but for a price.

"Jesse Custer, you know, he left Madame L'Angell's plantation or her place where he was kind of her purveyor of clients and he abandoned her when he was like 15," Buckley explains. "You know, she was a kind of top-of-the-line, state-of-the-art Cajun sorceress in town before he left, and then after he left things had kind of gone downhill. So she's pretty mad when he comes back asking for such a big favor. So she makes him give her everything."

Indeed, the character of Gran'ma is an angry old biddy in general, pasty-looking, disheveled and connected to an IV that hangs from her power wheelchair. Buckley had a quick turn-around time to create her after learning she had the job, so she relied on long phone calls with showrunner Sam Catlin and director Michael Slovis and the help of the costume, hair and makeup departments to draw a bead on her. But she also had outside help.

"I also collaborated with my psychologist," she says,

"which I always do, to get an angle from a psychological perspective of why a person with such a complicated psychology that's so abusive to other people, where that could have come from in her youth and childhood. So with the facts that they gave me I kind of figured it out. That's the work of an actor, is kind of being a detective trying to figure out who you're creating, who you then become the advocate for."

celebrity q&a

Jennifer Lopez

With "Shades of Blue" now in its third and final season, how do you reflect on the process of casting the show around you?

I was in there with Barry Levinson and the other producers at every casting session, trying to find the perfect people. The only one I never read with was Ray (Liotta); it was a unanimous "Yes" from all of us when he was interested in the part. And once he stepped onto that set, our having handpicked every other person, it was magic.

Sometimes, sparks fly. There's just a certain chemistry, and in our first scene together, I'm sure he was sussing me out in his Ray Liotta kind of way. I was coming in as an open book, knowing exactly who Harlee was and how I wanted to play her ... and from that moment on, we just volleyed. It was a great tennis match between the two of us.

"Shades of Blue," "World of Dance" and your Las Vegas concert residency have occupied much of your schedule lately, so your planned live staging of "Bye Bye Birdie" for NBC - as both a star and an executive producer - has been pushed back a couple of times. Do you expect that it still will happen?

It just comes down to trying to fit it in. Producing is a funny thing. You keep pushing boulders up the hill until something just forms, and then you say, "OK. That's what we're doing."

Things have to come together in the right way as well, like with the cast, the director, etc. Things have to fall into place, and we're fine with that. And if "Bye Bye Birdie" falls into place, we'll definitely do it. I love it.

celebrity scoop
BY GEORGE DICKIE

Life is very good for Dave Marciano these days.

Indeed, for the captain of the F/V Hard Merchandise on National Geographic's "Wicked Tuna," which airs its Season 7 finale and 100th episode Sunday, June 24 (and on Wednesday, June 27, in Canada), the rising tide of prosperity brought forth by the franchise has lifted his boat, literally and figuratively.

He no longer struggles with the feast-or-famine existence that is commercial fishing, thanks to a steady paycheck from the show. Additionally, "Wicked Tuna" has brought more tourists to the series' home of Gloucester, Mass., some of whom want to fish with a "Wicked Tuna" captain. So his fishing charter revenue has seen a nice bump - as have many of the other boats in town.

It's all led to a more comfortable life for the 53-year-old native of nearby Ipswich and has enabled him to make at least one major purchase, help put two of his kids through college and even start planning for retirement.

"We started retirement planning three years ago," explains Marciano, riding in his truck with wife Nancy on the way home from a charter. "Those are words as a fisherman I never thought I would utter. It's far from fully

'Chew' on weekday ABC show while you still can

Q: A friend said she heard "The Chew" was canceled. Please say it's not so. - Dayle Whitman, Deltona, Fla.

A: Sorry, we can't. After seven seasons, ABC has decided to end the food-themed, Daytime Emmy-winning weekday program, though episodes are slated to remain on the air until September. At that point, the slot will be assumed by a third hour of "Good Morning America" (presumably with an altered title, since it won't be morning then). Remaining "Chew" hosts Carla Hall, Clinton Kelly and Michael Symon have tweeted that while they look forward to new projects, they'll miss the show and working together.

Q: What led to the decision to bring "Last Man Standing" back after it being gone for a year? - Judy Howell, via e-mail

A: This is one of those cases where we're glad we hold to our "never say never" rule, especially since there was such an outcry from fans (as well as star Tim Allen) when ABC canceled the sitcom. A few factors account for this, not the least of which was the demonstration by "Roseanne" - before its own cancellation - of how strongly a series revival can perform if the fan base is still there. Syndicated repeats of "Last Man Standing" have fared quite well, so one has to think that also went into the decision to bring the show back in first-run episodes. And it's not a small matter that the series is made by 20th Century Fox Television, since with the Fox network bringing it back, the production costs and potential profits stay in the family (at least until a pending sale of part of the company possibly makes those entities not-as-close "relatives").

funded, but now we have that dream. It's a dream we never dared to dream before."

But retirement or no, he'll never give up fishing. It is, after all, his first love and something he's done all his life. He'll just do it when and where he wants. He even has a place in mind.

"If I'm ever super rich and famous, me and my wife would love to get a house in Florida," he says. "That way we can go there and get out of the snow and cold every winter like everybody else."

The asteroid is still coming: 'Salvation' starts Season 2

Nine months later, how much closer is that asteroid to Earth?

That's nine months in real time, but the gap has been shorter for the characters of "Salvation," the CBS sci-fi drama that returns for its second season Monday, June 25. When last seen, as scientists Liam and Darius (Charlie Rowe, Santiago Cabrera) continued to work on a possible solution to the crisis, those about to be launched into space to escape the impending disaster – including Pentagon press secretary Grace, played by Jennifer Finnigan – were dealing with a potential nuclear war, and also with leaving loved ones behind while readying for the voyage.

Jacqueline Byers, Ian Anthony Dale ("Hawaii Five-0") and Rachel Drance also are among returning "Salvation" stars, but Finnigan is particularly pleased a presidential counsel is portrayed by a new cast member: her husband, Jonathan Silverman ("Weekend at Bernie's"), with whom she welcomed their first child last fall. Thus, Finnigan filmed Season 1 of "Salvation" while pregnant, and she notes how different she's finding Season 2 ... especially physiologically.

"I would say it's even more difficult this year," she reflects, "I think I did pretty well with the physical wear and tear of being pregnant while doing really long work days, but this year, there's the addition of the mental and the emotional – having to leave my baby every day. It's really rough. It was hardest at the beginning, because I was used to being with her all the time. There's no controlling hormones, and sometimes, they hit."

While Finnigan is careful not to reveal too much about the direction "Salvation" is headed in – skyward or otherwise – the asteroid is no longer a secret to the general public, with mass panic a likelihood, as of the first new episode. "We pick up the way we left off, with Grace and about 160 others locked in the ark and just sort of in a holding pattern," Finnigan says. "The funny part is that within 10 minutes of being in the ark, everybody starts freaking out because they can't get cell service! I think that's the most realistic story line in the show so far."

Despite Silverman's presence, Finnigan evidently works more closely with "Salvation" addition Ashley Thomas ("24: Legacy"), as a detective who's on a very personal search for justice ...which Grace, with whom he becomes involved romantically, is strongly tied to.

"I would say the biggest change in Season 2 is that it's not as centered on the asteroid," allows Finnigan. "It becomes much more geopolitical, really about the internal politics of the country. We're almost nearing a civil war in the show, and I think it's really timely."

OF 'THE BOLD TYPE' ON FREEFORM

On a show about a fashion magazine, it only makes sense that the main characters' fashion style has been upgraded as "The Bold Type" has gone along. Are you enjoying that aspect?

Absolutely! It's been a really cool journey for me to go on, because I have no knowledge in terms of that area, so exploring my preferences in fashion and pushing my comfort zone a little bit has been a lot of fun. So has feeling confident enough to say, "This is what I like."

What have your encounters with fans of the show been like this past year?

The responses that we've gotten from people who are moved by the show are really special. For the most part, they're from people who say, "I watched this episode, and it mattered to me because" Or, "I love the way that you guys represent friendship."

Those kinds of things are really important and I think it's a big responsibility for us. And I wouldn't want it any other way. I'm so proud to be a part of a show that is talking about real things and, hopefully, infusing the audience with encouragement and confidence.

From the start, "The Bold Type" has seemed like a signature show for Freeform. Do you feel that way?

We were sort of part of Freeform rebranding itself. Now they have "grownish" and all these amazing shows, and even though "The Fosters" is no longer happening, that had such a great run and also was about real issues that people are dealing with. Freeform's main audience is an important demographic to be reaching, so that it's important to Freeform to represent all different kinds of people in different scenarios is really exciting.

Yeh makes comfort food with an ethnic/regional flair on 'Girl Meets Farm'

She may be a Juilliard-trained percussionist, but Molly Yeh found that food prep offered her something music could not – a more fulfilling creative outlet.

And that's on display in her new Sunday morning Food Network series "Girl Meets Farm," premiering June 24. From her farmhouse kitchen on the Minnesota/North Dakota border, the New York City transplant walks viewers through the preparation of original comfort food recipes inspired by her Jewish and Chinese heritage and her Midwest locale.

In the series premiere, she shows how to make a truly Midwestern delight, the taco in a bag.

"You put all of your favorite taco toppings in a bag of corn chips and then you can walk around eating it," explains Yeh, who is best known for her blog "my name is yeh" and her best-selling cookbook "Molly on the Range." "It's a thing that you eat at parties or at street festivals and stuff. And so I did a version with local fish, with walleye, which is a really delicious local whitefish here. And so those I was making for my sister-in-law's baby shower."

Among other dishes she'll be demonstrating are the garlic and onion challah, a dark chocolate scone with marzipan and scallion pancakes. Each of the seven half-hour episodes will have themes such as a girls lunch, a family visit, a farm supper or an anniversary celebration and all will have an emphasis on fun.

10:00 p.m. FOOD Beat Bobby Flay Jackie Rothong competes against Matteo Boffo; guests Scott Conant and Bethenny Frankel.

10:30 p.m. FOOD Beat Bobby Flay Steakhouse chef Admir Alibasic and Asian street food master Jason Tom compete.

celebrity q&a Brian Cox

BY GEORGE DICKIE

OF 'SUCCESSION' ON HBO

Throughout your acting career, have you ever met anyone like your "Succession" character, media mogul Logan Roy?

I've met a few people like that. ... There are a lot of people like that. It's the danger of success, you know, people believing their own myth. You know, there are certain actors that get knighted, and then they believe in their knighthood. They believe that that gives them some sort of special position. And they usually have been given that position because they come from a pretty poor background. I remember one actor who was very sympathetic to a particular actor who was going on about his knighthood. And he said, "Well, look, he had a challenged life. So he's trying to make the best of it. Good luck to him."

Would you like to be knighted one day?

Absolutely not. I am a CBE ... a Commander of the British Empire. But I sometimes think the "C" stands for another word.

King Lear is sort of a cumulative role for a lot of the great British actors, but when you played King Lear, you played a relatively young King Lear 25plus years ago. Does this feel to you like a chance to revisit that career-culminating role?

Yeah, there's elements of that, certainly. I think that King Lear is a pretty exhausting role, and each time I played it - I was 44 when I played it - I was knackered by it. I was also going through a particular bad time personally. It's a hard part to play, where you're constantly being rejected, which is what Lear is about. It's all about rejection.

Logan Roy has his inbuilt problems, because he is not liked. I mean, his family dumps him - don't like him very much. They worry about him when he gets ill, and they all get upset, but he's very much alone, and that's quite interesting. And as I'm now - though, I am much younger than Logan Roy - I have to act up. ... And the thing that's grown on me over the last three months is how alone the man is, and how alone he is in himself.

Players of tomorrow at today's CWS

One of the real pleasures of following college sports is knowing that at least some of the young athletes you're watching will go on to have professional careers in their chosen sport. College baseball is no exception, although it lacks the obvious hype compared to sports like basketball and football. Athletes in those sports are often celebrities at the college level; something that potentially carries over into their professional careers.

Baseball is a little different. Many players are drafted out of high school. The teams that draft them lose their contractual rights if that player opts to play college baseball as a full-time student. When they leave college, the draft process starts all over again. Then, there are often a few years, or more, in the minor leagues, and by the time a player makes rookie status, they could be in their mid-twenties.

So, when the College World Series final, a best-of-three series that begins Monday, June 25 on ESPN, gets underway, don't expect to see any players who may have been drafted earlier this month show up on a Major League roster next week. That goes for players from the eight teams that just played in the super regionals, which propelled them to the CWS, or players from any of the NCAA Division I contenders for that reason. Again, those who were drafted will likely be optioned to minor league teams, or fall and winter leagues.

Over the years there have been a handful of players who've made the jump from college to the big leagues in quick fashion. One of those is current Seattle Mariners pitcher Mike Leake who in 2009 pitched for Arizona State, making it to the final four of the CWS. Leake was decorated with numerous collegiate awards and was picked by the Cincinnati Reds with the eighth overall pick. The following April, after a stint in the fall leagues (but not the minors), he was in the Reds rotation.

Taraji P. Henson

"ACRIMONY"

Any fan of the series "Empire" likely suspects that the fierce Taraji P. Henson is someone you should not do wrong to, and she reaffirms that in this melodrama from Tyler Perry – marking an atypical dive into the genre for that usually comedic filmmaker. Henson had worked with him earlier in "I Can Do Bad All by Myself," and here, she plays a woman who realizes her husband (Lyriq Bent) has been cheating on her ... prompting her to seek revenge, and definitely not your garden-variety type. DVD extra: "making-of" documentary. Crystle Stewart, Danielle Nicolet ("The Flash") and Kendrick Cross also are in the cast. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"BLACK LIGHTNING: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON"

Another DC Comics character joined the CW series lineup with this stylish adventure, casting Cress Williams ("Hart of Dixie") as a charter-high-school principal who left his days as a crime-fighting vigilante long in the past. Or so he thought: The activities of a gang prompt him to take up his secret crusade for justice again, to protect both his family and the community at large. The executive producers here include "Girlfriends" alums Salim Akil and Mara Brock Akil, and cast members also include Nafessa Williams, China McClain, Christine Adams and James Remar. DVD extras: two "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; outtakes; Comic-Con panel. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"SPINNING MAN"

Though he's not playing James Bond again, Pierce Brosnan is back in the sleuthing business in his melodrama. He plays a police detective convinced that a college professor (Guy Pearce) – who has a reputation for getting very personally involved with students – has something to do with the disappearance of a teenage girl. Even the teacher's wife (Minnie Driver, who also appeared in Brosnan's first Bond movie, "GoldenEye") thinks he may have something to do with the vanishing. Jamie Kennedy and Clark Gregg ("Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.") also are featured. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; audio commentary by director Simon Kaijser; deleted scenes. ★★★ (R: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"ESCAPE PLAN 2: HADES"

Sylvester Stallone reprises his role from the first "Escape Plan" adventure in this sequel, again playing an expert at infiltrating prisons and extracting specific people from inside them. The retrieval mission is personal for him and his team this time, since one of their own (Huang Xiaoming) has been abducted and taken inside Hades, one of the most intricate and challenging facilities ever devised. Also in the cast are Curtis "50 Cent" Jackson, Dave Bautista ("Guardians of the Galaxy"), Jaime King, Jesse Metcalfe, Titus Welliver ("Bosch") and Vincent Young ("Beverly Hills, 90210"). ★★★ (R: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"GOING TO WAR"

Clearly timed for the Memorial Day telecast it recently had on PBS, this special finds two people who have done much documenting of wartime experiences – journalist Sebastian Junger and author Karl Marlantes – joined by military veterans who offer firsthand accounts of being at the front lines. Their thoughts also reflect how those who serve perceive their lives when they return home, and what the world means to them when their time spent on duty has been folded in. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, V)

"THE ESCAPE OF PRISONER 614"

Recapturing the title prisoner means everything to those engaged in the pursuit in this offbeat Western. The chasers include a corrupt lawman (played by Ron Perlman) and the deputies he just fired (Martin Starr, Jake McDorman), with the latter two believing they'll get their jobs back if they reach the fugitive first. However, trusting their former boss to do the right thing may prove to be a major mistake. ★★ (PG-13: P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Casey Moss stars as JJ Deveraux on "Days of Our Lives" weekdays on NBC.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL Convinced the new intern is working a hidden agenda, Maya searched for a link between Emma and Justin, then decided to confront the young woman. Meanwhile, Emma and her dancers impressed Hope with their audition for the Hope for the Future fashion preview. Wyatt made Sally a tempting offer. Maya crossed a line after she witnessed Emma taking photos of the collections, but Justin set everyone straight, assuring them Emma had no shady intent. Hope struggled to accept the news that Liam was planning to ask Steffy to marry him again, but Ridge assured her this reconciliation was the best thing for the whole family. Steffy's happiness over her prospects soured when Bill appeared with a list of new demands. When she rebuffed him, he dropped a major bombshell on her.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES Hope made a discovery that left her feeling thoroughly unsettled, while a wary Claudia opened up to Ben, albeit cautiously. Will experienced an unexpected flash of a forgotten memory. JJ rushed Lani to the hospital, where she underwent an emergency C-section as the Hortons rallied around her and Eli. While she was under sedation, Lani enjoyed a fantasy dream of how perfect life was going to be with her baby and JJ. Elsewhere, Eric, Jennifer, Lucas and Chloe celebrated over dinner, and Abe shared a warm moment with Eli. At her wits' end about Ciara, Hope lashed out at Tripp, while Ben opened up to Ciara about a troubling childhood memory. Chad made a predictable suggestion to Sonny, and Will withheld a secret from Paul. Chad tried to convince Victor he was the best candidate to run Titan. Kayla was caught snooping in Kate's room, while Steve really let Stefan have it over what he did to Abigail. Hope was immensely relieved when Ciara called, only to become upset over the news her daughter was delivering.

GENERAL HOSPITAL Sonny and Mike were interrupted by something, while Peter continued pleading his case. Obrecht took pains to carefully cover her tracks. Amy had an insight to offer someone, and Nina had an unexpected encounter with Drew. Carly was on her best behavior, and Nelle paused to reflect on her past. Liz wanted to just keep things simple, while Franco managed to catch up with Kevin. Sam was filled with admiration for Alexis. Dante ripped into Chase, who also was confronted by Michael. Kiki worried that all her efforts would be for nothing, and Josslyn leaned on Nelle. Oscar was forced to face something disappointing. Anna wasn't interested in pointing fingers and assigning blame to anyone. Nina firmly demanded some answers. Sonny felt a sense of relief and Julian let Alexis speak her mind. Sam and Curtis were frustrated as they hit a dead end.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS Father's Day forced Nick to face some hard truths about his relationship with Victor, leading him to crash the Newman Father's Day brunch. Abby also intruded on the event with Arturo in tow, hoping he and Victor could reach an understanding. Nick rejected Brittany's insistence that he was doomed to lose in court unless he broke up with Sharon. Victor started to receive anonymous threats from a hacker who is planning to destroy the Newman corporation. Abby introduced Arturo to Ashley and the trio had a fun time together, but Nikki, who witnessed the scene, was upset by the gathering. After Kyle offered to help Jack search for his biological father, they started their quest by looking for clues among Dina's possessions. Hilary and Devon revealed their rekindled romantic status at a holiday bash with the Ashby/Winters clan, where their news drew a lukewarm reception. Hilary tried to keep the less than magical aspects of her pregnancy from Devon, but he insisted he wanted to experience the whole thing with her.

'Star Wars' goes 'Solo' with Han's backstory

One key factor makes or breaks "Solo: A Star Wars Story," and you probably can guess what it is.

Just in case you can't, here it is: How successful is a different actor in channeling Harrison Ford's portrayal of one of the most iconic characters in the world of fantasy-adventure? Luckily, Alden Ehrenreich is up to the task, bringing enough of himself to the role while also honoring his forerunner — no easy combination.

The script also is impressive here, since it has to set down the roots of the Han Solo we've known for more than four decades. Those are true to what we'd expect: He's an interstellar rascal who lives by his own code, and he throws in with a band of smugglers including Woody Harrelson and Thandie Newton, only to end up an indentured servant to interplanetary mobster Paul Bettany.

If that seems like a lot of plot, director Ron Howard (who took over the picture after production had started under other filmmakers, a switch well-documented at the time) keeps things moving by merging his own smarts behind the camera with "Star Wars" tradition.

BY JAY BOBBIN

It absolutely helps that one of the writers here is Lawrence Kasdan, who also worked on what largely is regarded as one of the best of all "Star Wars" chapters, "The Empire Strikes Back." That first sequel introduced rogue and sometimes Solo friend Lando Calrissian, and he also gets sufficient time in "Solo," as played wonderfully by Donald Glover ... getting just enough of his Billy Dee Williams on, as Ehrenreich does in approximating Ford.

Admittedly, there has been a lot of "Star Wars" lately, particularly when you consider "The Last Jedi" was released only about half a year ago. If it seems too soon for another entry in the franchise, longtime devotees can't get enough of it, of course. And the proof is in the pudding, or in the resulting effect of the specific film in question, and it's interesting to see how a veteran moviemaker such as Howard fares in joining the series. (The answer to that: quite well.)

With any "Star Wars" offshoot, those behind it are taking a chance, especially in reinventing beloved characters. The latest attempt may be a "Solo" venture, but it's probably not the only time we'll see the hero in this new form ... and that is a very welcome likelihood.

Johnny Manziel is going from playing football on the shores of one of the Great Lakes to that of another. He's also playing in a different league, as well as a different country. In May, Manziel joined the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, who host the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Friday, June 29 on ESPN2.

The former Cleveland Browns quarterback, who also won the Heisman Trophy in 2012, is getting a new start in football, and perhaps in life. His time in Cleveland was tumultuous at best, as it was laden with personal problems. He hasn't played football since 2015. Now, with former NFL and NCAA coach June Jones trying to resurrect what has been an equally unsuccessful Hamilton franchise in the CFL, Manziel gets a second shot.

Should he get the fire back he had during his college years and have success, it would certainly be a positive aspect for the CFL, Manziel and the Tiger-Cats. Although he could be holding the clipboard, having a nationally televised game in the U.S. is a huge deal for the CFL, and any extra eyes that tune in will be looking to see “Johnny Football” on the field.

Manziel's return to football began with a stint in the Spring League, where he hoped the NFL would come calling. When it didn't, he agreed in May to a two-year contract with Hamilton, who began pursuing him over the winter to play football this summer and fall.

DOMINIC

DID YOU KNOW

Dominic Edward Cooper was born June 2, 1978 in Greenwich, London, England. He is the son of Julie (née Heron), a nursery school teacher, and Brian Cooper, an auctioneer.

Cooper made his stage debut in "Mother Clap's Molly House" at the Royal National Theatre in London in 2001.

Cooper was involved in the Alan Bennett play "The History Boys" from its first reading. He toured Broadway, Sydney, Wellington and Hong Kong, and appeared in radio and film adaptations of the play. In 2006, he was nominated for a Drama Desk Award for his work on the Broadway adaptation. For the film adaptation, he was nominated for a British Independent Film Award, London Film Critics' Circle Award and an Empire Award.

In 2008, he sang several songs in his role of Sky in "Mamma Mia!" He dated co-star Amanda Seyfried on and off from 2008 to 2010.

In 2009, Cooper starred as Hippolytus alongside co-star

Helen Mirren in a production of "Phèdre" at the Royal National Theatre.

In 2011, Cooper starred in "Captain America: The First Avenger" as Howard Stark. He reprised the role in the Marvel One-Shot "Agent Carter" (2013) and in the television series "Marvel's Agent Carter" (2015-2016).

He was nominated in 2012 for a Saturn Award for Best Actor for his role as Saddam Hussein's son and his body double in "The Devil's Double."

Cooper once shared a flat with James Corden and was responsible for introducing him to his wife, Julia Carey. He is the godfather of Corden's first child, Max.

He plays Jesse Custer on the AMC show "Preacher." He was in a relationship and lived with co-star Ruth Negga until they reportedly split up in April 2018.
