BEST NEW YEAR'S EVE MOVIES

“Ocean’s Eleven” (1960) The lights go out throughout Las Vegas when midnight hits on New Year’s Eve, thanks to the ex-military buddies led by suave Danny Ocean (Frank Sinatra) in the ultimate “Rat Pack” movie. Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr. and Peter Lawford play some of the other pals who are in on the simultaneous robbery of several casinos.

“The Poseidon Adventure” (1972) Not only does an enormous tidal wave overturn the S.S. Poseidon on New Year’s Eve, the cruise ship’s passengers are merrily crooning “Auld Lang Syne” at the moment the vessel begins to capsize. Like many other sites, the Poseidon hasn’t yet gotten rid of its Christmas tree, which comes in lucky for the survivors who have to climb it to survive.

“About Last Night ... ” (1986) As evidence that almost anyone’s New Year’s Eve has to go better, take Danny and Debbie (Rob Lowe, Demi Moore), whose live-in relationship hits the skids amid a huge holiday crowd at a favorite Chicago bar. While she wants to comfort a girlfriend (Elizabeth Perkins) who’s just suffered a trauma in love, he wants to party, and the rest pretty much spells itself out.

“When Harry Met Sally ... ” (1989) Although the picture has a postscript beyond it, this comedy’s pivotal scene is set at a New Year’s Eve party where hopeless – and hapless – romantic Sally (Meg Ryan) isn’t feeling very celebratory, until longtime confidant Harry (Billy Crystal) shows up and finally professes the feelings for her that took so long to develop.

“Peter’s Friends” (1992) Along the lines of “The Big Chill,” this engaging British-made comedy reunites a group of college chums at one’s (Stephen Fry) English estate on New Year’s Eve. A couple of the film’s other actors directed (Kenneth Branagh) and co-wrote (Rita Rudner) the picture, which also features Hugh

Laurie, well before he became an American television star in “House.”

“Entrapment” (1999) The dawn of the millennium is a big factor in this heist caper, as an insurance investigator (Catherine Zeta-Jones) tries to entrap master thief (Sean Connery) by joining his scheme to swipe billions of dollars while just about everyone else is cheering the arrival of the 21st century.

“Sex and the City” (2008) One sequence of the HBO-series-inspired film shows how the female friends see in a new year, with a reunion of Carrie and Miranda (Sarah Jessica Parker, Cynthis Nixon) particularly affecting.

“New Year’s Eve” (2011) Well, sure. There are loads of stories and stars in director Garry Marshall’s ode to Dec. 31, but arguably the most affecting segment teams Robert De Niro and Halle Berry as a cancer patient and his nurse, who await the legendary midnight ball drop together.

Carson Daly and Keith Urban share NBC’s New Year’s Eve duties

Keith Urban appears on “NBC’s New Year’s Eve” Monday.

By Jay Bobbin

This year, NBC’s New Year’s Eve party returns Carson Daly to the festivities — and it also involves Nashville substantially, thanks largely to Keith Urban.

Recently named entertainer of the year at the CMA Awards, Urban will appear from the country-music capital’s Bi-centennial State Park during the celebration Monday, Dec. 31. However, much of the program — one hour in primetime, then another surrounding the midnight ball drop — still will originate from New York’s Times Square, where “The Voice,” “Today” and “Last Call’s” Daly will be joined by Chrissy Teigen and “Saturday Night Live’s” Leslie Jones. Jennifer Lopez, Bebe Rexha, Diana Ross, Kelly Clarkson, John Legend (Teigen’s husband), Blake Shelton and Andy Grammer also will supply songs.

Urban has been elsewhere on the dial on New Year’s Eve before, and he says, “It’s a long-term plan. I love bringing in the new year in our town, and Nashville needs that singular, big New Year’s Eve show. We’re just going to keep building it, year upon year, if we get the chance.

“My drive is to have people all around the world see Nashville as a destination for

New Year’s Eve,” Urban adds. “Everyone instinctively thinks, ‘The ball drop is in New York, so that’s where we gonna go,’ but Nashville has grown in leaps and bounds. And what an incredible destination for people to come to and bring in the new year.”

Daly took last New Year’s Eve off, and he notes that with only one other exception, “I think I’ve been (on TV for it) every year since 1998. That started with MTV, when their studios were right there in Times Square. Last year was lovely because I was with my wife and my family at home, which was a nice change, but it was almost weird. I felt a magnetic pull to Times Square. I was almost itching.”

Last month’s Macy’s Thanksgiving Day Parade was the coldest on record, and Daly has sampled just about every outdoor condition possible on New Year’s Eve. He maintains he’s ready again.

“I’ve been out there for some record-breaking cold temperatures,” he recalls. “I feel like this time, it’s going to be unseasonably warm, and maybe that’s just wishful thinking. It’s been a pretty mild December, so I’m really holding out.”

Daly expects some warmth to be supplied by the “great group” he’ll be surrounded by: “Chrissy and I did the show together in part a couple of years ago. John Legend has become a good friend, and he’ll be on ‘The Voice’ for Season 16. We love Leslie, and I’m so grateful Keith has decided to go with us; the party he’ll host in Nashville will give us a not-so-New-York-centric feel for the show.”

celebrity q&a

BY GEORGE DICKIE

David Mazouz

OF 'GOTHAM' ON FOX

This being the final season of "Gotham," how do you think you're going to feel when it's time to say goodbye to Bruce Wayne for good? Have you processed it yet?

Not fully. I don't really want to. I'm a believer that everything happens for a reason and of course this era of my life will forever have changed me. I mean, I can see already it's changed me in countless ways. I feel like anything that happens during my teenage years are some of my most formative years and my teenage years, the past five years, were spent on this show and I'm so grateful for this experience. I know that I'm going to miss it to death once it's gone but at the same time I'm excited for what's next.

But "Gotham" is always going to have a really, really special place with me because it showed me things, it's exposed me to things, it's taught me so much about life, about the business, about acting, about my craft, about other people. And like I said, I'm going to be forever grateful. I'm always going to miss it.

In playing such a dark and tortured character, can you put him away when they say "cut"?

It depends on the scene. I mean, I'm not Method in any way, shape or form. I usually try to learn my lines at the last minute as much as possible. Because my philosophy, what I found works for me in acting ... is to kind of get in the space and feel what's right. ...

But we have done some scenes - there's a scene in Season 3 ... where I stab Alfred ... I probably could say that was the hardest scene I've ever done, it was so emotional. ... I distinctly remember that day. It was hard for me to get out of it. I went up to my room and just started crying because of it, which never happens. I'm usually smiling and goofing off right up until "action!" and as soon as they say, "cut!" it's back to that again.

Alex Mendez is a man who had a dream and made it come true. As a commentator on the new NBC competition series "The Titan Games," which premieres Wednesday, Jan. 2, the 31-year-old Bronx, N.Y., native has worked hard to get where he is, holding down jobs in retail and social work before eventually landing in his career passion, esports.

The man dubbed "Goldenboy" is well known in videogaming circles as an accomplished gamer and a commentator for a number of esports events, among them Epic Games' "Fortnite Battle Royale," Psyonix's Rocket League Championship, 343 Industries' Halo Championship Series and EA's "Battlefield" series. Also an avid WWE fan, he's called the action for CEO X New Japan Pro Wrestling.

Now, in his new assignment for NBC, he'll team with Liam McHugh and Cari Champion to call the action as competitors push themselves to their mental, emotional and physical limits in a series of head-to-head challenges.

It's the logical next career step for a man who hopes his story can serve as inspiration for others.

"My mother was a single mom going to college, trying to show her kids (that) if you work hard enough, you can achieve stuff," Mendez explains. "Her dream was to buy a house. And because of how hard she worked, she worked two jobs, went to college, took care of two kids by herself ... I saw my mom achieve her dream

Michael J. Fox kept 'Ties' to TV and movies at once

Q: I recently watched the Michael J. Fox movie "The Secret of My Success." Was he still on "Family Ties" when he made that? - Julie Gardner, Leesburg, Fla.

A: He was, since the film was released in 1987 and the NBC series ran until 1989. In fact, most of his hiatus periods from the show were filled with making movies ... and sometimes, he managed to do both at once, as with the original "Back to the Future." Other Fox theatrical features from that period included "Teen Wolf," "Light of Day," "Bright Lights, Big City," "Casualties of War" and the two "Back to the Future" sequels, which famously were filmed back-to-back.

Q: I like to watch "Blue Bloods," but I guess I missed one. Where did Danny's wife go? They talk like she died. - Bev Higham, via e-mail

A: You sure did miss one ... namely, the season premiere of the police drama's eighth year, when it was revealed that Linda Reagan had died in a helicopter crash while on medical duty. Amy Carlson, the actress who played the role, opted not to renew her contract; her place at the show's family dinner table was left empty for that entire season until the end, when Eddie Janko (Vanessa Ray) pulled up a chair to it for the first time as the patrol-partner-turned-fiancee of Jamie Reagan (Will Estes). The episode that explained Linda's fate is now part of the package of "Blue Bloods" repeats that runs regularly on ION Television and WGN America. And the newer CBS episodes have been very cautious about letting her widower Danny (Donnie Wahlberg) entertain a new romantic relationship, though there have been a few flirtations along the way.

of buying a house (and) it gave me this feeling of like anything is possible. If you really, really set your mind to it, you can accomplish this. And that was the basis of how I got involved in this industry in esports and now with "Titan Games."

"The message I'm always telling people," he continues, "is no matter where you come from, if you love something and if you're passionate about it and you want it, it is possible."

Seth MacFarlane's 'The Orville' takes off for Season 2 on Fox

"The Orville" is launching its second season a bit late, but Seth MacFarlane has been glad to use every minute of the extra time.

As the Fox spaceship saga returns Sunday, Dec. 30 – following an NFL doubleheader on the last day of regular-season play – its star, creator and executive producer notes how all-consuming the series (normally to be seen Thursdays) is. "We spend an entire year working on this," he reports. "You get anxious to get some feedback, because you're really working in a vacuum up to that point."

Season 2 filming on "The Orville" began in February and ended in mid-October, and MacFarlane maintains that because of special effects and other complex logistics, some episodes wouldn't make their air dates without starting so early. "It's a streaming show that's on a network," he reflects. "We always joke on the set that it's an impossible show to complete on a network schedule and budget, yet somehow, we do it. We'll be in post-production right up to the wire, trying to get all the stuff done."

"You're just bound by the reality of time and the physical laws of the universe," adds MacFarlane. "It takes the time that it takes. I look at medical dramas and legal dramas and family dramas, and those shows are on tight schedules as well. Add visual-effects work and set design and action sequences on top of that, and it's a beast."

While "The Orville" salutes "Star Trek" in many ways, even having "Trek" franchise veteran Brannon Braga as a fellow executive producer, MacFarlane is confident that the show's followers have embraced the mix of humor (which his "Family Guy" history makes logical) and science fiction – along with tonal shifts between episodes.

"I feel like the fans understood it a lot better than the critics did," he says. "If we were tanking all across the board, that would be distressing, but I was really gratified and happy that the fans did grasp the show pretty early on."

As such co-stars as Adrienne Palicki, Penny Johnson Jerald and Scott Grimes also continue on "The Orville," MacFarlane wants to keep integrating guest stars of a caliber to match last season's ... who included Charlize Theron and Liam Neeson, who were in his 2014 movie "A Million Ways to Die in the West."

"I had such fun and such great personal experiences with both of them, I was thrilled that they agreed to come and do the show," MacFarlane confirms. "They're both busy people and very in demand, and it's nice when you develop a friendship and on subsequent projects, they're willing to come in and lend their star power. It's great for the show."

Mackenzie Porter

OF 'TRAVELERS' ON NETFLIX

What are the challenges in playing a character like Marcy?

I think the most challenging aspect is I kind of play different personalities. I mean, there are a few different versions of Marcy, so as an actress I always need to go back and remember, "What do I know?" I have them labeled in my head, like Marcy 2.0, 1.0, original Marcy, so I have to remember what she would know and what she doesn't know, depending on which character I'm playing. Usually throughout the season I'm playing the same person but sometimes just as an actress I'm like, "Oh, she wouldn't have known what I know because her consciousness was reset." So I find that challenging sometimes.

Sounds like it's easy to lose track.

Totally. Like I have a whole kind of thing written out, my cheat notes of what she would know. And then sometimes if we're filming really fast, the other challenging thing about playing Marcy is the dialog sometimes. I really do have to memorize it a little bit far in advance just because it's all medical. Especially in Season 3 there's a lot of medical jargon and so that always takes me a little bit longer just to memorize and really know what I'm saying. I have to look up a lot of words and a lot of medical terms.

On the other hand, you can converse with doctors on their level now.

(Laughs) I feel like I could do a surgery on somebody. No. You know what's pretty cool, is every day on set when I'm doing a scene like that, we actually do have a surgeon who shows me how I would properly suture or how I would properly hold this device or that device or how to properly give CPR. So I actually have learned a lot.

Gordon Ramsay makes 'Hell' worth their while in Season 2 of Fox restaurant-rescue series

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Gordon Ramsay has seen it too many times.

Restaurateurs become complacent and lazy and they stop paying attention to the competition. Often, cleanliness in the kitchen suffers and the food goes downhill. And if the business is family-run, there are likely morale issues as well, as no one wants to speak up for fear of ruffling feathers.

It's a downward progression of events that usually ends with the eatery going under – and family relationships fractured.

"The first question I ask," Ramsay says, "is: If this chef wasn't your son or daughter, would you fire them? Immediately, yes they would. And if your mother wasn't the manager, would you fire her? Yes, I immediately would. So they forget the importance of there's no family when you run into that business. ... Yes, you can love and support one another but you need to make decisions."

In Season 2 of "Gordon Ramsay's 24 Hours to Hell and Back," which commences Wednesday, Jan. 2, on Fox, the chef, author and restaurateur comes to the aid of more eateries suffering from morale, management, food and/or cleanliness issues that threaten to force their closure, giving the place a makeover over the course of one full day that is designed to get the place back on its feet. This season, he works his brand of tough love on businesses in New Orleans, Kansas City and Connecticut, among other locales.

But to be able to properly identify the issues, Ramsay can't go as Gordon Ramsay, so he's walked into restaurants dressed as everything from a woman from a local charity event to a police officer to a baggage handler. Hidden cameras capture the reactions of staff and customers when he unmasks himself.

9:00 p.m. FOOD Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives Bison burritos and cornmeal waffles; pho and barbecue pork; monster burgers.

9:30 p.m. FOOD Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives Paella and posole in Chicago; Nashville hot chicken in Seattle; guava ribs in Hawaii.

10:00 p.m. FOOD Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives Ramen and beer can chicken in Maui; in Los Angeles, a twist on fish and chips.

10:30 p.m. FOOD Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives Stuffed pork chops and lobster mac 'n cheese; chicken and tri-tip; crab melt and pork belly Reuben.

Saturday

12:00 p.m. FOOD Worst Bakers in America Recruits learn that boot camp is no cakewalk; chefs go back to basics with a sugar cookie recipe.

"Screaming, people standing up cheering, 'holy s...!', " he says. "And I'll start peeling off my beard, my nose, my ears, my cap, and then they are f... freaking out."

In the end for Ramsay, it's all about getting the business – and in some cases the family – back on track.

"That's the bit for me ...," he says, "honestly handing those keys back over to those owners and seeing their faces, they're asking to hug and they're asking me to stay. And 23 hours prior to that, I'm called (many profane names) and oh my God! So to get through that process is quite an extraordinary turnaround."

"So that's when I get happy," he continues, "watching them fall back in love with their restaurant. They've been given this incredible, brand new fit-out. The restaurant's décor is in keeping with what it should be; it has an identity. And then of course, it's (been given a strong presence on) social media and we have local critics coming in.

"So they are back on the map."

OF 'DIRTY JOHN' ON BRAVO

How much research did you do to play the real-life title character in "Dirty John"?

Sometimes, it can be a bit like quicksand. Whilst there's a lot of factual information about John, I actually find him really mysterious, so there's a lot of stuff about him that I don't want to know.

Ultimately, I think, when you're dealing with something that's based in reality, you can either choose to do something that's 100 percent traceable to the exact facts of how (the people involved) were – which can potentially be a little bit boring to watch – or you can try and come up with something that has a sense of that person that might be more interesting.

What did you determine about John Meehan from what you learned?

It's not him individually that's fascinating; it's his behavior and that type of character. And I think that's why people find the podcast so interesting, because he's such an unusual person.

Most definitely, studying how sociopaths behave and think and that sort of thing was more important – or as important to me – as it was to just focus on specific events that occurred in his life and kind of put them in some sort of memory bank.

You've largely done movies. What drew you to take on a series via "Dirty John," on which you're also an executive producer?

TV's something that hasn't really been a viable option for me, simply because I live in Australia, so the film landscape has lent itself perfectly to my lifestyle. This was the first one of the first occasions where something came along that was doable and that was extremely attractive. I've looked at a lot of TV stuff over the last 10 years, and this was the one that got me.

NFL TEAMS FIGHT FOR THEIR POSTSEASON LIVES IN WEEK 17

The 2018 NFL regular season rolls into its last week with a number of teams facing do-or-die scenarios with regard to securing a Wild Card berth. Regional games Sunday, Dec. 30, on CBS and Fox will bring final resolution to that playoff picture.

One of the more hotly contested showdowns figures to come in the AFC South, where the Indianapolis Colts and Tennessee Titans were both in the running at this writing. In a regional match-up on CBS, Marcus Mariota and the Titans hope to use the home field to their advantage against Andrew Luck and the Indianapolis Colts, who defeated them 38-10 in Week 11.

Also fighting for their postseason lives that day on CBS are Ryan Tannehill and the Miami Dolphins, who hope their road contest against Josh Allen and the Buffalo Bills will prove to be just the tonic to vault them into January. They have history on their side, having beat the Bills in Florida in Week 13, 21-17.

Joe Flacco and the Baltimore Ravens also need a win and a prayer to get to the postseason, and their home game on CBS against Baker Mayfield and the Cleveland Browns just might do the trick. But the Browns squeaked past the Ravens 12-9 in overtime in Week 5.

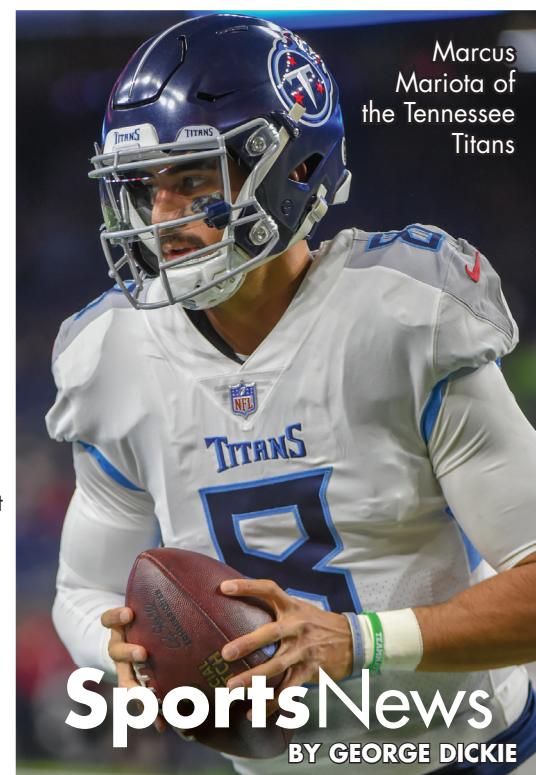

Over in the NFC (and on Fox), Kirk Cousins and the Minnesota Vikings figure to have an uphill climb in their quest for a playoff berth in their home game against Mitchell Trubisky and the NFC North-leading Chicago Bears, having lost to their division rivals 25-20 in Week 11.

Carson Wentz and the Philadelphia Eagles would like to get back to the postseason to defend their first Super Bowl championship, but they'll first have to go through the homestanding Washington Redskins to get there. The Eagles defeated the 'Skins 28-13 in Week 13.

Also on the outside looking in are Cam Newton and the Carolina Panthers, who need a victory over the New Orleans Saints to have any chance at continuing their season. But they have two things going against them: They'll be facing one of the best teams in the league in Drew Brees and his mates. And the Saints are motivated, as they may be looking to clinch home-field advantage throughout the playoffs.

Away from the gridiron, the most noteworthy sporting event this week is the annual NHL Winter Classic Tuesday, Jan. 1, on NBC, which this year pits the Boston Bruins against the Chicago Blackhawks outdoors at Notre Dame Stadium in South Bend, Ind., in a clash of "Original Six" teams.

Hockey like it oughta be, indeed.

"NIGHT SCHOOL"

Resuming his education many years after he dropped out proves quite revelatory for a man (Kevin Hart) who needs a GED result for a job he wants in this comedy. Tiffany Haddish plays the night-school teacher, whom he manages to infuriate with his antics almost instantly, but she eventually takes a special interest in him and helps him toward making the grade, literally. Director Malcolm D. Lee also includes Taran Killam ("Single Parents"), Rob Riggle, Romany Malco ("A Million Little Things"), Keith David and Anne Winters ("13 Reasons Why") in his cast. DVD extras: audio commentary by Lee; "extended cut" version; deleted scenes; alternate opening. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"BAD TIMES AT THE EL ROYALE"

Writer-director Drew Goddard's moody melodrama draws a number of disparate characters together at a rundown motel on the border of California and Nevada in the late 1960s. Each has his or her own secrets to keep, but that becomes difficult in the face of bad weather and the arrival of someone else whose presence prompts some surprising revelations by the others. Jeff Bridges, Dakota Johnson, Jon Hamm, Chris Hemsworth, Tony Award winner Cynthia Erivo ("The Color Purple"), Nick Offerman ("Parks and Recreation") and Shea Whigham are among the stars. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; photo gallery. ★★★ (R: AS, N, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"BAD REPUTATION"

The music-business journey of the influential and decidedly unconventional Joan Jett is traced in this documentary, a testament to how perseverance can pay off ... since she literally started her career out of her car trunk after facing rejection from numerous labels. The last laugh would be hers, since she became pivotal to two iconic bands (the Runaways and the Blackhearts) and released such enduring hits as "I Love Rock 'n Roll," "I Hate Myself for Loving You" and this film's title tune — and she also has been an actress on occasion ("Light of Day"). Jett's own comments here are supplemented by those from many of her friends and associates including Kristen Stewart (who played Jett in the movie "The Runaways"), Pete Townshend, Iggy Pop, Michael J. Fox and Miley Cyrus. ★★★ (R: AS, N, P)

"FRONTLINE: THE PENSION GAMBLE"

This recent episode of the PBS series examines the shortage of funds for pension payments promised to government employees, with correspondent Martin Smith looking into the causes for the shortfall. He concentrates on the situation in Kentucky, but the point is stressed that it's not unique to that state, with the 2008 financial crisis having set the groundwork for the pension dilemma that exists currently. Questionable investments on Wall Street also have added to the problem over the ensuing years, with public employees such as teachers (some of whom comment here) also impacted. ★★★ (Not rated)

"A-X-L"

The title character in this adventure is a dog, but certainly not an ordinary one ... it's a robotic canine that has been programmed as a potential weapon, but its destructive tendencies are altered by the new friendship it makes with a youth (Alex Neustaedter, "Colony") who discovers it. Its creators then want it back, but that could become a big problem when the situation reactivates the robot's original, dangerous instincts. Singer-actress Becky G, Thomas Jane, Ted McGinley and Lou Taylor Pucci also star. ★★★ (PG: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray)

"SHINE"

Salsa dancing is a big element of this drama about two brothers, one of whom has moved on while the other has maintained his own footsteps, quite literally. The sibling who has become a lawyer (Jorge Burgos) returns to his Spanish Harlem neighborhood in New York, which has been ravaged by a series of fires — and where he is pitted against his still-dancing brother (Gilbert Saldívar). David Zayas ("Dexter") and Alysia Reiner ("Orange Is the New Black") also are featured. ★★★ (R: AS, P)

Melissa Reeves stars as Jennifer Horton on "Days of Our Lives" weekdays on NBC.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL Hope told Steffy and Liam she wanted to enjoy Christmas without Taylor. Steffy vowed to never turn her back on Taylor. Taylor told Reese she did something terrible and Brooke was using it against her. The Logans, Avants and Spencers joined the Forresters at their estate for Christmas. Hope and Liam announced their daughter's name. Ridge gave Steffy a present to give to Taylor. Zoe demanded Reese stop pretending she was the reason he moved to Los Angeles. Hope set up a "babymoon" for her and Liam. The thug threatened Reese to pay him or face the consequences. Ridge surprised Brooke with a kiss at work. Steffy and Liam took ailing Kelly to the doctor, thus changing his and Hope's plans for leaving Catalina Island. Ridge shared his New Year's resolution with Brooke.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES Gabi panicked when she learned Julie had awakened. Abigail dropped a bombshell on Stefan. Julie surprised her family as they hung ornaments. Abigail and Chad received a Christmas miracle. Leo made a spectacle of himself at the holiday children's party at the hospital. Abe got an unexpected gift from Sheila. Chad reeled after learning he is Charlotte's father. JJ tried to get Haley to talk about her problems. Chad demanded Rafe arrest Gabi for her deceptions. Jennifer apologized to Abigail for not believing in her daughter. Gabi feared for her life as she found herself at Stefan's mercy. A face from the past turned up at a New Year's Eve celebration at Doug's Place. Eric consulted with Justin about suing for custody of Holly.

GENERAL HOSPITAL Ryan continued to torment Kevin. Lulu shared her findings with Laura. Julian celebrated a belated Christmas. Kevin bought a little time. Ava lashed out. Kevin got an unwanted visit. Laura sought help from Felicia. Griffin struggled with his feelings. Jason warned Sonny to not get too close to Margaux. Kim was touched by Kim's support. Michael attended a charity gala. Willow went on a date with Chase. Kim reminisced. Kristina came to a decision. Olivia made a discovery.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS Victoria spent the holiday with Billy and their romantic chemistry began to return. Jack spent the day with Dina and tried to remain festive despite her not recognizing him. Devon faced his first Christmas without Hilary, joined by Nate and Ana. Kyle and Lola exchanged gifts and she was horrified to realize how little he knows about her. Ana confronted Devon for taking credit for the talent she discovered and he asked her to sign the writer of Fen's song to the label. Fen accused Ana of being the writer and she admitted he's right.

Taron Egerton

BY JAY BOBBIN

As everyone from Errol Flynn to Kevin Costner has suggested, every generation needs its Robin Hood ... but maybe it should have skipped a generation. This one.

The latest movie about He Who Robs From the Rich to Give to the Poor plays around with tradition, using such effects as slow-motion in action sequences, maybe to try to look cooler to younger audiences. Or, since Taron Egerton has the title role, maybe it's just trying to capitalize on the same techniques used in his successful "Kingsman" adventures.

Anyway, the basics stay the same as Robin returns home to enlist his somewhat Merry Men — including a decidedly not-merry Jamie Foxx as a variation on Little John — in opposing the Sheriff of Nottingham, played by Ben Mendelsohn. If you want an authentic "Robin Hood," it's best to stick with an earlier edition, since no one seems really invested in his or her part here (and that also includes Eve Hewson as Marian).

One of the main challenges in updating a classic tale is in making it speak effectively to modern audiences while not losing what made it special in the first place. Tipping even slightly to either end can throw off the balance entirely, and so it is with "Robin Hood."

To a certain extent (but only to a certain one), you can't fault the picture for wanting to try a different approach, since there is such a long legacy already established. After the 1938 Warner Bros. staple "The Adventures of Robin Hood" came an animated Disney version, an elder-statesman Hood (in the persona of Sean Connery) in "Robin and Marian," and even a comical Robin in the Mel Brooks spoof "Robin Hood: Men in Tights." And that's just to name a few of the other takes.

As today's younger actors go, Egerton isn't a bad choice to be a new Robin Hood. He may come across as a bit too young for the role, but that's less a fault of his than a measure of the median age of past screen Robins, who generally have been on the older side (yet still able to handle the physical requirements of the part, a tribute to their respective trainers and/or stunt doubles).

Leonardo DiCaprio is a producer of this latest version, and while his intentions probably were good, the result is something of a well-costumed mess. It's pretty bad when you have a "Robin Hood" that can't see the Sherwood Forest for the trees.

In the midst of a career year, Paul George eschews MVP talk

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Yes, it’s still early in the season. But Paul George’s career year hasn’t been lost on Oklahoma City Thunder fans.

“M-V-P! M-V-P! M-V-P!” they chanted at the small forward after his 31 points on eight-of-10 shooting (including five of six from three-point range) led the Thunder past the Utah Jazz 122-113 on Dec. 10 for their 17th win in their first 25 games.

On the season, the Thunder have been at or near the top of the Northwest Division and the Western Conference and the 28-year-old product of Fresno State has been a big reason why. At this writing, he was leading Oklahoma City with a 24.3 points per game average, while also racking up career highs in rebounds (7.8), assists (4.3), steals (2.2) and blocks (0.8). And he’s been the best defensive player on the team with the NBA’s best defense.

But say the M-word to the five-time All-Star and he’ll insist he’s not out for personal awards.

“My job is to give everything I have, play as hard as I can and just try to win as much as possible,” he was quoted as saying. “If that makes me MVP, then so be it.”

This from a guy who only four years ago suffered a scary compound fracture of his right leg that left his career in doubt.

George and the Thunder can be seen in action on the road twice this week on ESPN: Wednesday, Jan. 2, against the Los Angeles Lakers and Friday, Jan. 4, versus the Portland Trail Blazers.

BY JAY BOBBINJAMES
SPADER

James Todd Spader was born in Boston on Feb. 7, 1960, as the youngest of the three children – and only son – of two teachers. He attended private schools, but ultimately dropped out to start his acting career in New York.

He landed his first prominent movie role in the original version of “Endless Love,” then his star continued to rise through the 1980s via such films as “Pretty in Pink,” “Mannequin,” “Baby Boom,” “Wall Street” and “Sex, Lies and Videotape” ... the latter earning him an award from the Cannes Film Festival.

The 1990s also were bountiful for Spader, with his movies during that decade including “White Palace,” “Bad Influence,” “True Colors,” “Stargate” and “2 Days in the Valley.”

Though the new millennium yielded more films for Spader, such as “Supernova,” “The Watcher” and “Secretary,” television work became more of a consideration for him after his memorable “Seinfeld” guest turn. He joined the cast of “The Practice” and earned an Emmy as unconventional lawyer Alan Shore, a role he would continue in the spinoff “Boston Legal” – winning two more Emmys for the part in that series.

After that show completed its run, Spader did a guest shot on “The Office” in the last episode of the comedy’s seventh season, then ended up staying on for Season 8 as Robert California. He then went back to movies with a role in Steven Spielberg’s “Lincoln,” but TV soon came calling for him again.

Since 2013, Spader has played enigmatic Raymond “Red” Reddington on the NBC suspense drama “The Blacklist,” which launches its sixth season with an episode airing in two parts Thursday and Friday, Jan. 3 and 4. He’s still doing movie work, as shown in recent years by “The Homesman” and “Avengers: Age of Ultron.”
